The greater part of this resource was developed in a three month period in Japan in 2000, a task which would have been impossible without the support of a Japan Foundation Fellowship and the assistance of the following people in Japan and Australia:

My co-writer Ryoko Murano of Gakushuin University for her ongoing advice and collaboration which continued into 2005; the members of the six host families who gave their time and shared their opinions for the family introductions, interviews, Nama no Koe sections and photos ; the staff of the Japan Foundation, Urawa, in particular Yoshiko Furukawa who assisted with the language choices and coordinated the recording; Isao Tsujimoto, Director, Teaching Resources Division; those who provided voice-overs for this first version of the recording including Sonoko Mukai, Eizo Ueno, Makoto Netsu, Aino Murano, and Yuko Sakai and friend; colleagues Emi Otsuji and Yasushi Hirai for voice-overs; the staff of the American Field Service (AFS) exchange program for introductions to one of the families; my ex-UTS graduates in Tokyo, Miyuki, Satoko and Kayoko and their partners who gave second opinions for Nama no Koe sections; my special assistant Aino Murano for creating the icons and assisting with transcribing, Matsue Kamio of Joochi University and her overseas students for providing me with an opportunity to trial a unit; my nieces Christina and Xanthe and students of Japanese at UNSW and UTS for examples of student language choices; Mr.Kakazu and Nanayo Kato-Wilder of the Japan Foundation Sydney Language Centre; my ex-colleague Michie Akahane-Suparman whose ideas contributed to the original idea of using rated language choices; Annabelle Lukin, Susan Cornish and David Butt for encouragement and advice, and my partner, Ken Carpenter, for ongoing sensible counsel and support.
